ged Blood and Courage!

What drives the men right up to the men. Did any one ever see a puny, thin-blooded man ever rush into the fight with any chance of winning out? With rich, pure blood you can face any hardship, reach any goal. But you are handi-capped in the race of life without it. Every tissue, bone, muscle, should take from the blood certain materials and return to it certain others. When the poisons accumulate in the blood, perhaps the face breaks out in pimples, or boils appear on the neck, and we feel languid, tired, our vitality is at a low ebb, and we easily catch cold.

It's time to take an alterative extract and blood-purifier, taken from Nature's forests. Such a one is made up of Golden Seal, Blood and Stone root, Oregon Grape and Queen's root - extracted with glycerine and made into sugar-coated tablets or liquid, and this has been sold by druggists for the past fifty years as Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

LENOIR, N. C.—" Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a great medicine for me in building me up when I feel run-down in health. It gives me strength and flesh. I have been using it at different times for thirty years or more. I began its use for catarrh, and it greatly relieved me. I can heartily recommend the 'Discovery' as a blood medicine."—Mrs. Lucy Beach.

Louisville, Ky.—"This is to certify that I have been in bad health for a long time, suffering from stomach trouble. Had terrible spells of indigestion and sour stomach. A friend told me about Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I had fittle faith at first but she persuaded me to try it. I have taken a little over four bottles of it and my stomach trouble has vanished. I can now eat everything and sleep like a lamb. I want to give all the oredit to this great medicine, which I consider the best on earth for stomach trouble."—T T. LAYTON, Route 2, Box 28 Rercy Boulevard.

IRON" POLICY JUDGE MOON'S DEFENSE OF VOTE ON SUFFRAGE

Not Opposed to Votes for Women, He Said, but Did Not Favor Method.

(Special to The News.) Washington.-Now that the smoke has lifted over the battle in the house of representatives for the amendment to grant woman's suffrage by ratification of the states, a glimpse of what the great and the near-great said and

Moon, of Tennessee, was based chiefly on the ground of state's rights, the Tennessee lawmaker contending that it is a dangerous precedent for the na-tional government to disregard the inalienable rights of the state. dress came as a surprise to both advocates of suffrage and those who were in congress to try to prevent its pas-sage. Congressman Moon had maintained complete silence regarding his position and did not announce before he entered the house chamber which he would vote.

His speech was commented upon by the local press, because it contained none of the radical assertions made by many opponents of the suffrage amendment. After stating his position on the amendment and deploring the necessity for federal intervention to give the franchise to women, Judge Moon

"For the gratification of those most excellent women and men who desire the passage of the pending woman's suffrage amendment to the United States constitution I would be much pleased to vote to submit it for ratification to the states, but my sense of duty and my loyalty to the platform of the national democracy and to principles of my party and obedience to the will of an overwhelming ma-jority of the people I represent for-bids that I do so. It is not because I have any opposition to women exercis-ing the right of franchise that I cast a negative vote on this amendment, but because of the manner in which it is sought to be obtained. A restrictive amendment upon the rights and the liberties of the people of a state attached to the federal constitution can not be desired by any person who has renches in this war is courage, and it's given careful thought to our system of red blood that "puts the heart" in the government and the basis upon which given careful thought to our system of local rights and liberty rests.

"There are various reasons assigned why the amendment should be passed and many why it should not be be passed. There are many people who believe in the right of women to exercise suffrage who can not, so long as they represent the will of the majority of the people and oppose the destruction of the rights of states, consent to the granting of suffrage federal amendment. Some contend that the mingling of women in politics would purify the electorate and make the government safer and better. They may be correct. Others contend that ch conduct would render women less modest and therefore less worthy of the respect of men, and at last pro-duce a race wanting in that delicate refinement and feeling of sentiment that comes from the tender and confiding life of a pure woman, unstained with the gross and sinister methods of political life. This may possibly be true. It is most likely true that both contingency leas present a remote and can not be of much value in the practical determination of the ques-

woman is entitled to all the rights and privileges, including the right of suffrage, that men enjoy; nor has man the moral right to determine whether it is best for women to exercise the right to vote or not. Women should be permitted to determine for them-selves that which they think is best for them. For men to determine that women ought not to vote is to destroy the equal justice to which the sexes are entitled. The power, aside from the moral right, however, to make men and women equal at the ballot box under existing law rests with the qualifled voters. The quali 1 voters are men, and women therefore have no voices under the constitution and law as it exists in securing their own enfran-chisement. It therefore becomes the

the other is by amendment by each state to its constitution or by its law if permitted under the state consti-tution to grant suffrage to women. A large number of the states have already granted suffrage to women. They have exercised their political power and sovereignty in the matter and determined in the interest of the rights of women. Other states might be of the opinion that it is not proper to grant this power to women. The proposed federal amendment, if passed, would deprive the state of its legal right to determine its elections. determine its electorate. It may said that the amendments that have already been passed to the federal constitution that are restrictive of the rights of states do also pro tanto deprive the state of sovereign power. That, so far as it goes, is true, but it affords no reason why the state should be further deprived of sovereignty, nor are the powers of which the states are deprived under the federal constitution essential to the maintenance of local self-government. The enumerated powers of the federal government un-der the constitution are those powers which are essential to the transaction of the greater functions of government that are national in their nature. They do not restrict the states in the most function that enables them to maintain local self-government. When you deprive a state of the right to say who its electors are or place restric-tions upon the state in determining the qualifications of its electors, you strike down absolutely and unconditionally the life of its sovereignty. The power that names the voter is the sovereign and the only sovereign. The man who assumes that there should be further restriction upon the right of the state understands not the principles of free government or the foundation upon which American liberty must rest."

(Applause.) Miss Rankin's Argument.
Thirty minutes later, Miss Jeannette Rankin, of Montana, got a chance to address the house. She made a short speech, as is her custom when she speaks at all, and this is the most important part of her address:

"It would be strange indeed if the teligence, a feeling, a spiritual peculiar to themselves, which they hold in readiness to give to the world. It would be strange if the influence of women through direct participation in the political struggles, through which all social and industrial development proceeds, would not lend a certain virility, a certain influx of new strength and understanding and sympathy and ability to the exhausting effort we are now making to meet the problem be-

"For seventy years the women leaders of this country have been asking the government to recognize this possibility. Every great woman who stands out in our history-Susan B. Anthony, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Clara Barton, Mary Livermore, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Frances Willard, Lucy Harriet Storie, Jane Addams, Ella Flags Young, Alice Stone Blackwell, Anna Howard Shaw, Mrs. Catt—all have asked the government to permit women chisement. It therefore becomes the chisement. It therefore becomes the chisement. It therefore becomes the chisement to determine the manner to serve more effectively the national government to determine the manner welfare. All have felt that the enterpy, the thought, and the suffering ergy, the suffering ergy and the suffering ergy are suffering ergy and the suffering ergy and the suffering ergy are suffering ergy are suffering ergy and the suffering ergy are suffering ergy are suffering ergy are suffering ergy and the suffering ergy are suff that was spent in trying to obtain permission to serve directly should as quickly as posible be turned to the actual service. And in the meantime they did all they could indirectly. They learned to read and to know each other. They became interested in each others problems, for they found them to be their own problems. As they were the stabilizing influence in the home and kept the family unity, so they have become a great possible stabilizing influence in society, asking now to help keep the unity of the nation to its highest standard of service.

"They have stood back of the men. They have pioneered with them, rejoiced with them over their success, and, when they failed, encouraged hem and helped them to begin again. the women have done all that they were allowed to do, all that the men "Pape's Diapepsin" Relieves all their work they have pleaded for the political machinery which would enable them to do more,

"Today as never before the nation needs its women—needs the work of their hands and their hearts and their minds. Their energy must be utilized in the most effective service they can give. Are we now going to refuse these women the opportunity to serve in the face of their plea-in the face of the nation's great need? Are you gentlemen representing the south, you who have struggled with your negro problem for half a century, going to retaliate after fifty years for the injustice you believe was done you so long ago?" Suffrage a Success. Congressman Austin was so pleased over the effort of Miss Rankin that he gave her a public boost. After the rapid-fire debate had died down and Mr. Austin got special permission to ure the floor, he observed:

Mr. Austin-"Mr. Speaker, I avail myself of the limited time at my dis-posal to pay a simple, sincere, and de-served tribute to the fair member of tilis house (Miss Rankin) who so well and faithfully represents the state of Montans, and who is in fact the real leader and invincible champion of the just cause of the noble women in the American congress. In all fairness, she well deserves the chief credit for the victory which I hope will be achieved here today for human rights, for equal justice, for the blessings of liberty, for the freedom and enfran-chisement of one-half of 100,000,000 Americans. The highest best, and strongest evidence that woman frage is a success has been established in this house by the enviable record made by our colleague from Montana, who has won the respect, confidence, and admiration of the members and officials of this house, from our hon-ored and impartial speaker down. Well may Montana, the women of this nation, the congress, and the American people, regardless of politics, be proud of Representative Jeannette Rankin." (Applause.)
